

MORNING APPEAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1877

NOTES AND QUERIES AT THE LAKE.

YANK'S STATION, Aug. 9, 1877.

EDITOR APPEAL: The air hereabout is decidedly fallish these nights and mornings, and the days are superb. Everywhere else the air is a compound. Here it is pure—all oxygen and nitrogen—or whatever first elements the atmosphere is made of. Elsewhere it is part dust, part lint from superabundant old clothes, part particles of fever, scurvey, mumps and other ills to which flesh has fallen heir, and a good part the breath of duns, liars, book-peddlers and like afflictions and impertinences. Here there are no distillations no exhalations, no second-hand vapors, no infinitesimals of corruption and disease. All you can do is to catch a cold in your head and wheeze like an asthmatic locomotive. And speaking of asthma, here is a gentleman close at hand who cannot manage to live in San Francisco, so much is he oppressed with his phthisis, who makes nothing of a ten-mile row in his skiff, or an all day walk up and down hill and dale. Moreover, your "bear," here, is a genuine character—not a disagreeable imitation of the dog in the manger with a masquerading, fantastical borrowed name—but a shaggy, savage, cow-eating, calf-devouring, bull-defying monster. The other day a dweller at Meek's Bay (midway between Emerald Bay and Sugar Pine Point), informed me that he had been out in the high mountains to the west, all the day before hunting grizzlies. He said that he and his companions had come upon the "sign" of Messieurs Bruin, and had seen where they had seized and squeezed and dragged to death the poor, struggling frightened heifers. "They catch a cow by the nose," said he, "and drag her off to where they and their cubs can devour her." There's something awfully tragic about this. It is little enough to say that these bear hunters came back without the game they were looking for. I don't think I ever was told before that the grizzly would thus attack live stock and make way with it in cannibalistic fashion. I had a notion that he was more of a ruminant—a sort of half-swinish root-digger and possible honey pirate. But he seems a thorough savage beast and as bloodthirsty as a very tiger of the jungle. There are few if any deer in this rim of mountains about the Lake—on the Lake-slopes I mean. Twelve or fifteen miles to the westward, yonder, the black-tail deer is abundant. A keen old deer-stalker told me the other day that the ridge of mountains dividing our side from Sierra Valley marked the bounds of two distinct kinds of deer. This side it is the black tail; on the other, it is the "mule deer." The mule deer is so called because of his immense ears. Also he differs from the black-tail in size, being much larger and heavier. Now what is the "mule" deer. Is he at all related to the caribou of British Columbia? There are no elk in the mountains. These frequent the foot-hills and valleys. At hand are many campers—Maish, our industrious wood-working friend and universal genius being among the others. Then the peripatetic schoolmarm is also about—likewise the smaller scientist with wisdom on his face and spectacles on his nose, he may be seen astonishing the lesser and tenderer with his learning. The glacial theory finds many expounders. It is very instructive. One set of young fellows who are having a very hearty time of it, (among them some young gentlemen named Hymn, from Virginia City), tell me they caught no less than eighty dozen trout in and about Hope Valley. That is, by as much as seventy dozen, too many. At this rate of slaughter there will soon be a complete annihilation of the native mountain trout. Why not, oh sportsman, see to it that once a year, there is a thorough replenishment of all clear cold streams with spawn and young fish? In China, or somewhere else, (China is as good a name as any other for the purpose), when a man cuts down one tree he plants the seeds for several. So, when an angler catches a dozen trouts he should take steps toward the sure planting of enough of the ora of that fish to make up for the waste. But eighty dozen, my lads! Eighty dozen is the pot-filling kind of pot-hunting. As well shoot a suttling grouse on her eggs or a brood quail with her little flock. Mr. John Rosser arrived here yesterday—came to join his family who had preceded him about a week. I note that John is squinting toward the Bays and lesser lakes. He brings me enthusiastic accounts of the late Turners' Festival. I took a trudge yesterday to Cascade Lake—I and the boys. We went by Yank's new wagon road which takes you, direct, to that lovely little sheet of water, in about three miles of very passable "going." Our camping neighbors swarmed there, in time, and "made the waters which they beat to follow faster as amorous of their strokes"—and it may be said, further that as to their singing, "it beggar'd all description." I shall probably go to Emerald Bay to-morrow as Sailor Jack's guest. My present purpose is to spend the night there so as to get a good chance at the splendid scenery, night and morning. Perhaps will take notes and compile the same for the MORNING APPEAL, but will not promise.

The families of Col. Rosser and Mr. John P. Meder, arrived from Lake Bigler last evening where they have been sojourning during a part of the summer.

IMPORTANT MINING SUIT.

The Richmond and Eureka Consolidated Mining suits which are now pending in the courts of San Francisco being of such great importance and involving so much money, we called upon a distinguished member of the bar, who is retained as counsel in the cases, to elicit some of the facts connected therein, which must undoubtedly prove of interest to residents of this State. The principles attached to this case are to be for the first time tested by any court. And the property in controversy runs into the millions. In the event of a verdict in favor of the Eureka Consolidated Mining Company being rendered the Richmond Company will be mulcted in the sum of $4,000,000 for damages alone. The principal geological question involved in these cases is whether the lime stone belt in that country over the underlying quartz and under the superimposed shale, and in which lime stone belt the ore bodies are found can be considered within the meaning of the Act of Congress as a lode, and if the several bodies of ore can be called one mine. The experts were questioned upon this vital point. Professor Rodgers and others testified that the lime stone belt is a lode. Clarence King and others expressed the opinion that the lime stone belt was not a lode, but the country rock inclosing the ore bodies which were found in what they denominated pipe vein. The testimony was closed on the 3d instant, and followed by argument of counsel on both sides. An early decision is expected.

Another runaway occurred last evening, about seven o'clock, on the street in the rear of the Mint. The Messrs. Cutts were driving along in a buggy when a vicious dog jumped at the horse, which frightened him so that he became unmanageable; the vehicle was upset and the gentlemen thrown upon the ground. What injuries the occupants received we could not learn. The horse was last seen tearing down the street at a frightful speed with two buggy wheels attached to the shaft.

On the street yesterday, was to be seen an eccentrically clad individual, costumed in the Centennial uniform worn by our sires during the Revolutionary war. He is registered at the hotel where he stops as Samuel Washington, and claims to be a descendant of the Father of his Country, and as we have no proof to the contrary, we are compelled to believe it.

The Germans of Carson have formed a congregation for religious worship of their own, which is presided over by the Rev. Adolph Geyer, as pastor. The reverend gentleman is quite young in years, but very eloquent, and has an exceedingly pleasant manner of delivery. Services are held every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. E. R. Elrod, the lady who was injured by being thrown from a buggy on the evening of the 8th instant, is suffering much pain from the injuries inflicted by the accident. In addition to a broken wrist, it was ascertained that her hip was also injured; from the latter injury the lady suffers excruciating agony. The attendant physician states that it may be many months ere the lady will be restored to her former well being.

THE EXCURSION TO BOWER'S MANSION, on Sunday next will be accompanied by the Carson Brass Band. The mansion is a popular place of resort. Mr. Sproule proves to be an energetic, wide awake manager of the entertainments there given. The excursion on Sunday will doubtless be the largest of the season to that place.

It appears that some steps should be taken by the authorities to remedy the defective drainage of this place. The stench arising from all quarters of the city after night-fall is becoming unbearable, and is very likely to breed disorders of a malignant type. It is certainly high time that this matter be looked after.

PHOTOGRAPHIC.—Two young men from Chicago have arrived in Carson, and renting the vacant lot nearly opposite Mason & Co.'s store, have pitched a tent and named it the Palace of Art, and propose taking photographs at a lower rate than ever known in Carson.

The beautiful new residence, situate on the corner of Spear and Telegraph streets, constructed for Mr. Hyman Oleovich is nearly ready for occupancy. The building is an ornament to the city, and before long a number of other citizens will follow the example set by Mr. Oleovich.

George W. Hawkins of the Mint is recovering much more rapidly than could be reasonably expected. Yesterday afternoon he was lying on a sofa, apparently very comfortable. He had a very narrow escape from death.

All the presses in the Coining Department of the Mint are now busily engaged from morning till evening. All day long the click, click, of dropping coin is heard.

There will soon be an exodus from here of numerous members of the sporting fraternity for Reno, where the festive wood chopper has many shekels to dispose of.

From the Northern Belle mine, per southern stage, Wells Fargo & Co. received four bars of bullion valued at $7,607, last evening.

It is stated by those who ought to know that there is no danger of Mountain Beer mounting to one's head.

Forepaugh's circus will be in Virginia on the 23 inst. and remain three days.

An assessment of 50 cts. per share was levied on Sierra Nevada yesterday.

FIRE LAST NIGHT.

At 10 o'clock last night a destructive fire broke out in a vacant house until recently occupied by C. Moger, on Nevada street near Washington. The flames rapidly communicated to the corner house occupied by Mr. Kennedy, who keeps a shoe store opposite the Mint. Some furniture was saved out of this house, but the flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save all. The loss is considerable but the amount could not be ascertained owing to the lateness of the hour. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as it occurred in an untenanted house. The amount of insurance, if any, could not be learned. The buildings destroyed were the property of R. B. Ellsworth. Owing to the promptness of the Virginia & Truckee Railroad in their engine to work, a large amount of property was saved from destruction, as quite a number of frame buildings were in close proximity to those destroyed.

Visiting the studio of Mr. C. B. McClellan, yesterday, we observed several pictures on the easels which promise to be of great elegance and superb finish when completed. One is of a little girl who died some three years ago, the daughter of Grant Israel, Esq., resident of Virginia, and the other two are portraits of the parents of Geo. B. Hill Esq. There is an indescribable finish about Mr. McClellan's studies, which is rarely met with.

M. V. Davis, Esq. special agent of the Treasury Department, arrived in our city yesterday. His visit here is for the purpose of compiling statistical matter of the Carson Mint service for the Treasury Department at Washington.

Hon. James Crawford, Superintendent of the Mint is expected here this morning. Geo. H. Davis, the Nimrod, will be on the same train. There will be much tribulation amongst the feathered tribe known as the sage-hen.

The advertising car of the Forepaugh Circus Company passed through for Virginia yesterday morning. It is a gorgeous affair. Wonder if the show is in keeping with all this blast of trumpets and red fire!

Mrs. Helen D. Kingsbury, for several years a resident here, leaves for Santa Clara, Cal. this evening, where she will assume charge of the Santa Clara Female College.

Col. W. S. Wood, of Virginia, was in town last evening.

The Caledonia club of Virginia will picnic at Treadway's grounds to-morrow.

An assessment of $1.00 per share was levied on Best & Belcher on the 8th inst.

H. F. Rice of W. F. & Co.'s agency in Carson is in Virginia City.
